Item 8.01 – Other Events.

As previously disclosed, AngioDynamics, Inc. (“AngioDynamics” or the “Company”) is the defendant in an action brought by C.R. Bard, Inc. and Bard Peripheral Vascular Inc. (collectively, “Bard”) (now part of Becton Dickinson & Co.) in the United States District Court for the District of Delaware titled C.R. Bard, Inc. v. AngioDynamics, Inc., 1:15-cv-00218. On November 22, 2022, following a one-week trial, a jury entered a verdict finding that certain of the Company’s implantable port products infringe certain U.S. patents held by Bard. The issue of damages was bifurcated by the Court during trial, was not determined by the jury and will be subject to a separate proceeding. The Company strongly disagrees with the claims and the verdict, and believes the verdict is not supported by the facts of the case or the law, and is the result of error. The issues presented to the jury do not comprise all of the issues to be determined in the case. Equitable issues and patent eligibility issues remain to be decided by the judge, and damages remain to be decided by a jury. The Company believes it has meritorious defenses and positions with respect to the matters remaining to be decided and the jury decision, and intends to vigorously pursue all available remedies and defenses, including post-trial motions and appeals, which is a process that could extend over several years.
